

SCOTT MAUTZ BIO

● Scott Mautz is a popular keynote speaker and the author of the upcoming book Find the Fire: Reignite Your Inspiration & Make Work Exciting Again. The October, 2017 release is the anticipated follow up to Make It Matter: How Managers Can Motivate by Creating Meaning – a book that has received many accolades including “The 2106 Leadership Book of the Year - First Runner Up”.

- He’s a Procter & Gamble veteran who successfully ran several of the company’s largest multi-billion dollar businesses, including their single largest, a $3 billion-dollar division, all while transforming organizational health scores along the way.
- He’s been named a “CEO Thought-leader” by The Chief Executives Guild and a "Top 50 Leadership Innovator" by Inc. Magazine, where he also writes a bi-weekly column for the national publication.
- Scott is an Adjunct Professor at Indiana University where he teaches others-oriented leadership and the secret to sustaining motivation.
- Scott’s also the CEO of Profound Performance LLC, a keynote and training company that helps you Work, Lead, & Live Fulfilled.
- He’s appeared in Harvard Business Review, Entrepreneur, and many other national publications and podcasts.

Scott graduated from Binghamton University in '91 and received his MBA from Indiana University in '94. He lives in Cincinnati, OH with his wife and daughter (who is growing up too fast).